FROM THE PRESIDENT

Dear Friends and Supporters,

2022 was an amazing year at TWC! We added new staff, a new aviary, and new medical equipment while treating lots of patients and presenting many high-quality education programs. We also gained new supporters, which has been critical for us to expand and improve our care. Here are some of the top successes of the year that we are excited to share:

- Over 1,000 patients were treated, across 97 species, even in the face of a significant epidemic of highly pathogenic avian influenza in North America necessitating enhanced biosecurity protocols.
- We hired a new Wildlife Rehabilitation Manager, Jessica Schombert, who came (back) to us after having worked as a senior aviculturist at the National Aviary. She is a graduate of Allegheny College and had spent time at Tamarack as an undergraduate.
- We hired a new full-time Outreach and Education Manager. Melissa Goodwill came to us as a seasoned Environmental Educator from Asbury Woods in Erie. This is the first time that TWC has had three full-time staff members!
- After years of planning, we built an outdoor aviary to house some of our ambassadors. This allows for public viewing and is better for their long-term health. Thanks to a local family foundation for supporting this project.
- We achieved another long-time goal when we purchased our own on-site x-ray machine. This greatly increases our ability to diagnose the injuries of patients quickly and accurately. This was possible thanks to major support from the Erie Community Foundation, Kenneth A. Scott Charitable Trust, a Keybank Trust, Crawford Heritage Community Foundation, and U.S. Steel Corporation.

When I first joined the Board of Directors of TWC in 2009, the organization was far different than it is now; it was much smaller and much less visible, although just as committed to serving wildlife and the community. After more than a decade as the President of the Board, I am stepping aside and a new President, Terrie Swanson, is stepping up. I will remain on the Board, and I am excited to still be part of this vibrant organization that touches so many lives. I can't wait to see the next chapter of Tamarack Wildlife Center, and with the support of so many wonderful volunteers, supporters, and colleagues. I'm sure it will be incredible.

Thank you, everyone!

The New X-Ray Machine!

We are very excited to improve our patient care with the addition of an onsite x-ray machine, which was installed in December. This greatly improves our ability to diagnose patient injuries accurately and quickly. Major support from Kenneth A. Scott Charitable Trust, A Keybank Trust, Erie Community Foundation, Crawford Heritage Community Foundation and U.S. Steel Corporation made this possible.

The New Aviary!

TWC celebrates the construction of a new raptor ambassador aviary which was generously funded by a local family foundation. The aviary houses three of the center's 8 raptor ambassadors, on a rotating basis. The featured birds are available for public viewing daily 8am-4pm.

Rosie's

RELEASE!

Each patient admitted to Tamarack Wildlife Center leaves an impression on the staff and volunteers, but it's rare for a patient to capture the attention of thousands of people around the world. A juvenile Bald Eagle, Rosie, was able to do just that. Rosie gained fame as a member of an eagle family nesting along the Monongahela River that was showcased on the popular U. S. Steel Eagle Cam.

Before fledging, Rosie suffered a fall and broke the primary flight feathers on one wing, leaving her unable to get airborne. True to this unique eagle, her rescue story was one for the books. Camera monitors witnessed her fall, and soon after, TWC's director assessed footage that confirmed she needed help. PGC Warden Schellhammer and U. S. Steel Irvin Works Plant Manager Don German scaled a steep ravine to capture her. Perhaps the most important team member was Rosie's sibling that remained perched in a tree right above her guiding her rescuers. Without the Eagle Cam and her sibling, Rosie would not have survived.

Rosie was stabilized by colleagues at Humane Animal Rescue of Pittsburgh and then transferred to TWC on July 3rd, due to our specialty in treatment of eagles. During treatment Rosie underwent a process that replaces lost or damaged feathers called "imping." Donor feathers were carefully implanted into the existing feather shafts on her wing, like a hair extension. This procedure was successful and replaced 12 feathers.

After the procedure, Rosie immediately tested her new feathers with a short flight up to a low perch. After that first taste of flight, Rosie wasted no time challenging herself to fly farther and higher. The next day she was flying to her highest perches.

Rosie soon surpassed all expectations in terms of her flight skills. The ever curious Rosie continued to gain strength and stamina, and she demonstrated excellent aerial maneuverability with 180 degree turns. What's more impressive is that Rosie perfected these skills without full use of her tail which serves as both a rudder and brakes when birds fly. Rosie had sustained damage to her tail feathers when her wing was damaged, and she could not safely be released until they regrew. Rosie once again rose to the challenge and regrew all but one of her tail feathers sooner than expected.

With Rosie's quick progress, Carol Holmgren, Executive Director and Lead Wildlife Rehabilitator at TWC, conferred with colleagues at other raptor centers and all agreed that Rosie was ready to go. Rosie was released near Pymatuning on October 20th, in collaboration with Pennsylvania Game Commission. For the big moment, her carrier was opened by Don German of U. S. Steel and Carol with PGC Warden Wingenbach looking on. Rosie immediately took off for her first flight ever in open skies. She delighted all those present by circling three times overhead before eventually perching in a nearby stand of trees.

Rosie's rescue, rehabilitation and release was a team effort. We are grateful to all involved, including TWC supporters that allow us to be here for amazing patients like Rosie. Our hearts take flight with her, as she takes to open skies.

-Melissa Goodwill, Outreach and Education Manager

From Treatment to Training Treats

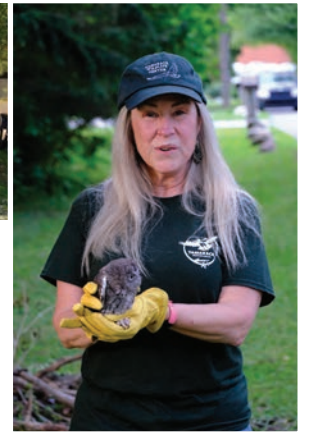

Cricket is a male American Kestrel that was admitted to Tamarack in June of 2021 as a young, fledgling bird with a fractured wing. While his wing healed with treatment, he was not able to fly well enough for release. TWC rehabbers realized Cricket had the potential to be an excellent educational ambassador so Cricket shifted from receiving medical treatment, to receiving training treats! With the help of positive food associations, Cricket gradually learned critical skills for being an ambassador: taking yummy treat tidbits from a human, stepping onto a scale, stepping onto a handler's glove, hopping into a carrier, and being calm in front of a group of people. At the same time, the TWC team started seeking a good educational placement for him, and Audubon Community Nature Center in Jamestown, NY was selected.

In the summer of 2022, with state and federal permits approved, Cricket moved to his new home in Jamestown, NY. Audiences are falling in love with both him and his species, and he is inspiring people to protect kestrels in the wild. Cricket has a new home, a new mission, and lots of treats.

As a public library, we are in the "business" of growing the minds and hearts of people, often through books, but also through experiences. Our recent Tamarack program inspired genuine awe and an emotional connection to the big wide world that can't be compared to anything else. What could better illustrate the importance of learning about and protecting the habitats of wild birds of prey than meeting one of those birds face-to-face?

I cannot say loudly enough the respect and admiration I have for Tamarack Wildlife Center and their staff. We learn so much from them and their expertise in birds of prey and other species. What a perfectly executed release for this bird now free to the skies after a long road of recovery. Mad respect for you Carol Holmgren and team! Well done!
