Our 2021 Wildlife First Responders class will be an online class with video segments, electronic handouts, and live Q & A sessions via Zoom. The online class will be available February 8-11 with optional in-person wildlife capture practice sessions for small groups of participants Feb 12-14. This will make the class safely accessible to all.

You will learn when to intervene and when not to and how to capture, stabilize, and transport injured birds and other wildlife. While the main thrust of the class is learning how to respond when you find wildlife in need, you will also be introduced to opportunities to help wildlife by volunteering with the center. Those wishing to volunteer by answering our wildlife phone helpline for a 4 hour shift each week and will receive a rebate of $20 once starting to volunteer (with mentoring) after the course. Sign up for capture practice is on a first come, first served basis, so register early!
